Congregation Shirat Hayam will hold three Town Meetings in October to discuss shifting to a voluntary dues model called “Trumot HaLev / Gifts of the Heart” starting next spring. The proposed pledge model will include Membership, High Holy Day seats, Lev donation and CJE (Hebrew School) tuition.

“This is the biggest transformation of Shirat Hayam since the merger in 2005,” Rabbi Michael Ragozin said.

As of 2017, over 50 synagogues were identified nationally as operating with a voluntary commitment model. The results are positive. Congregations report an annual average increase of 3.6% in membership and 1.8% in pledge revenue, according to Rabbi Michael. “In addition to these business considerations, congregations with an Annual Pledge laud the profoundly positive impact on congregational culture and values,” he added.

Steve Solomon, co-chair of the Voluntary Dues Committee, said there will be an extended feedback period this fall with Town Meetings set for Wednesday, October 24 at 10 am and 7:30 pm and Sunday, October 28 at 10 am.

“We want to be sure Shirat members have a clear understanding of what will be a major shift in the way CSH is run and a chance to express their concerns and provide feedback. We want transparency of what will be necessary for us to thrive going forward,” Solomon explained.

The Town Meetings will address: the current state of CSH, why this dues model is the key to CSH’s future, and what the dues model would look like. The meetings will include ample opportunities for questions and feedback.

“We understand this is a huge cultural shift. We hope that congregants know their feelings and opinions are heard and valued and they come away believing this initiative is in the best interest of CSH to thrive into the future,” Solomon added.

INSIDE THIS ISSUE

This special issue includes an additional page that contains the Calendar of Events, covering October 15 thru December 31 and some community highlights, including a very cool Rosh Hashanah exhibit of antique greeting cards. Check it out on the insert page!
RABBI’S CORNER
The Work

Hebrew has but one word, avoda, for work and worship.
- HUGO BERGMANN

Starting with the High Holy Days and culminating with a joyful, spirited Simchat Torah, we’ve engaged in a lot of worship. Now the work of the year begins. What can we expect in the upcoming year?

The midrash teaches that the Torah served as a blueprint for God’s creation (Bereshit Rabbah 1:1). In other words, in order to create this universe, God needed a plan. So too for us. The blueprint for Shirat Hayam, our spiritual community, is our CSH Vision Statement (see page 3).

How will we transform this vision into a reality? To begin, entering a congregation as a clergyperson is no small task. Building upon the depth, feeling, and vibe of the High Holy Days, Cantor Alty and I will continue to focus our efforts on delivering a fulfilling spiritual experience — one that you look forward to each Shabbat, one to which you invite your friends, one that your children want to attend with you.

Seeking Sinai

It was a very meaningful experience for me to pray with all of you over the High Holidays. Our hearts and intentions felt aligned under the leadership of Rabbi Michael and his beautiful prayer, “Kavanot”.

The melodies I’ve sung a cappella over the past 20 years as a High Holy Day Cantor and the new songs and arrangements I wrote for this year came to life with the stirring support of our five piece ensemble, Men Chorus, Chai Notes and soloists Ann Segal and Sarah Nissenbaum. The blending of very traditional “Nusach” prayer modes and congregational songs with new melodies and rhythms was intentional. I’m so grateful you afforded me the opportunity to share this part of me with you.

The following story of a revered early Hasidic leader helps explain why I chose this path:

“When my master’s master’s master felt the need to especially connect with God, he would go to a sacred spot in a certain sacred forest and sing a special sacred melody. My master’s master said he was no longer able to find the sacred spot, but that he would still go to the sacred forest and sing the sacred melody. My master told me he could not even find the sacred forest, but he would still sing the sacred melody. And I’m telling you,” the Hasidic leader continued, “that I don’t know the sacred melody, but I can still at least tell the story.”

For me, this story is saying that the idea that only one particular melody sung in one particular spot in one particular forest can be replaced by a conviction that closeness to God could be achieved anywhere and through any number of sacred melodies. When we come to shul on the High Holy Days, we want an authentic Jewish experience. We want a connection to our ancestors all the way back to Sinai if the Rabbi and Cantor can take us there.

“Well,” we ask, “is that mystical, traditional melody we use on Rosh Hashanah from Sinai? How about this passionate Yom Kippur Nusach, that chant, or cantillation- is it from Sinai also? How about this new lilting, Latin rhythm? that soaring Middle Eastern melody? And the new African groove? Sinai too?”

Any song, text, photo, or slice of nature that makes one feel connected to the source…then that’s from Sinai, as far as I’m concerned. What then is Sinai if not the source, or another word for the source: God, Adonai, Elohim?

May we continue to find and share sources of inspiration with each other. May we continue to create a spiritually engaging community of seekers at all levels of Jewish knowledge and experience. May we allow ourselves to live in the light of joyous Judaism.

B’shalom,

Cantor Alty

Every month, The New Wave spotlights a congregant as a way to help us get to know each other better by putting a face with a name. For Herb Goldberg, shofar blowing is a family affair. He fills in the details here:

When did you learn to play the shofar? What drew you to it?
Cantor Sarah Gellar led the Sunday morning minyan at Temple Beth El. The first day of Elul 2000 was a Sunday. She asked who would like to try sounding the shofar? We all just sat there. Then she asked who played a musical instrument in high school? I timidly raised my hand and when I told her I played cornet and baritone horn, she said “get up here.” After a few instructions, I got a sound. The next morning at minyan, Rabbi Weinsberg asked me to continue, which I did for the rest of the month, becoming the “echo” at the back of the sanctuary for Rosh Hashanah. (I used the temple’s shofar.)

My grandson, Jason Gladstone, has been blowing shofar since he was three years old. He couldn’t even lift it, but sat on the steps with the shofar on the floor and gave a “blooze.” Grandson Jordie has his own shofar too.

Some call you the “Miles Davis of shofar blowers.” Tell me the story of your shofar.
My daughter Stefanie threw an un-surprise party for me on my 65th birthday. The invitation said no gifts, but some close (and determined) friends and family asked what I wanted. Stef said: my own shofar. They took me on a “mystery” ride to the Israel Bookstore in Boston, where the salesperson left me in a room with hundreds of shofars. After about an hour, I knew which one I liked best.

What else are you involved in at CSH? How long have you been a member?
We joined TBE around 1975 and I was on the TBE board during the merger talks. At CSH, I am involved with the Brotherhood and was honored as Mensch of the Year.
